

Amsterdam's Moskow Diskow

Moskow Diskow is a creation of two people: DJ DiskoMachina and DJ Goldfinger. (see for some info www.salonussr.com, www.kidnaprecords.nl, www.myspace.com/diskomachina) Goldfinger played recently on the St. Valentines day in Kaunas, Lithuania.

There's a fascination with sexy, risqué Moscow in the West. You have Russendisco in Berlin and you eastie scenesters in the Dam. Why is that?
Russian stands for unpredictability, romanticism, uncontrolled kicks, exaggeration, soulsearch and is a counterpart for everything American. And don't forget a myth of Russian brides.

Are some of you Russian, or it's a Dutch 'white-trash-for-flash' project?

We are originally Russian, who became half Dutch after living in Amsterdam for too long. Half-man, half-woman, half beast, half human. We don't do so much accent on modern music from Russia though. Music is very eclectic and international. From twisted disco to itchy electro with love of girls powerbands such as Avenue D, Exchpoptue and Terry Poison.

What sort of crowd do you get at your gigs?

Our crowd reflects the multinational character of Amsterdam with some extra Russian spice. Think of fun-seekers, lazy freaks, adventurers, artists, creative losers and wanna-bees.

What's your most embarrassing fashion moment?

Wearing Brazilian outfit at Brazilian Party

Do you drink vodka? What brand?

Stolichnaya
Moskovskaya
Oblomov (Dutch)
Russkiy Standart
Absolut (banana flavour)
Finlandia (cranberry)
And all other drinkable types

When was the last story you heard or talked about a murder or bank robbery? What was it about?

Recent story in Dubai: rude jewel heist by Russian mafia. Check <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=msX5gKjUg0>
